Graduate Enrollment Prior to Admission into a Graduate Program

Employees covered by this policy

This policy applies to all Faculty employees at LU and applicants of positions.

Policy

An undergraduate student may enroll in a maximum of nine graduate hours during her/his final undergraduate semester if he/she has a cumulative GPA of 3.0 and has been approved by her/his advisor and the dean of the proposed graduate degree area. These graduate hours can be applied to a graduate degree program once the student is officially admitted to the degree program. Specific admission criteria are listed in section 3.82 and also in the undergraduate bulletin. A student will not receive graduate credit for any course work taken at Lincoln University prior to being officially admitted to the Graduate Program. After official admission, a maximum of nine hours of graduate credit earned during conditional or special, non-degree-seeking status may be applied towards a master's or specialist degree.

All conditions for admission must be satisfied before the student earns more than nine graduate hours. A student who fails to meet the conditions of her/his admission after nine hours may be restricted from further enrollment in graduate level classes until the conditions are met.
