

Professor Felix M. Edoho: A Trailblazer in Business Education and Community Engagement

Meet Professor Felix M. Edoho, Sr., Ph.D., a distinguished academic whose lifelong dedication to research, teaching, and community service has left an indelible mark on the fields of business administration and public policy. With a career spanning over three decades, Professor Edoho's journey is one of unwavering commitment to excellence and innovation.

Born and raised in Nigeria, Professor Edoho's academic journey began with a Bachelor of Science in Business from Lincoln University, Missouri, followed by a Master of Business Administration (MBA) from the same institution. He further honed his expertise with a Doctor of Philosophy (Ph.D.) in Public Policy & Administration from the University of Delaware. His doctoral dissertation, "Technology Relocation and Structural Dependency: The Nigerian Experience with the Petroleum Industry," laid the foundation for his groundbreaking research on transnational corporations and corporate environmental accountability.

Throughout his career, Professor Edoho held various leadership roles, including Department Chair/Professor at Langston University and Director of the MBA Program at Lincoln University. As a visionary leader, he spearheaded initiatives to introduce graduate programs in Public Policy and Management, launched a Master's in Entrepreneurship Studies, and implemented innovative recruitment strategies to boost enrollment.

A prolific scholar, Professor Edoho's research agenda focuses on critical issues such as environmental governance, public policy, entrepreneurship, and intercultural management in the era of globalization. His seminal works, including "Corporate Environmental Accountability in Nigeria" and "Management Challenges for Africa in the Twenty-First Century," have earned him international acclaim and recognition.

Beyond academia, Professor Edoho is deeply engaged in community service and international consultancy. He has served as a consultant-evaluator for the Higher Learning Commission for over two decades, contributing to the accreditation process of numerous universities and colleges. His dedication to fostering global partnerships is exemplified by his role as a faculty coordinator for the Joint Accelerated Global MBA Program between Lincoln University and Tsinghua University in Beijing, China.

In recognition of his outstanding contributions, Professor Edoho has received numerous awards and honors, including the Lifetime Fellow designation from the International Society for Development and Sustainability and the Roy Wilkins Award for Community Service from the NAACP. His commitment to excellence extends beyond academia, as evidenced by his leadership roles in cultural associations and multicultural forums.
